Job Title: Curriculum Developer, Education Department (part-time, unpaid)

About Us: The University Blood Initiative (UBI) is a new but highly accomplished registered non-profit which optimizes grassroots level action to combat local blood shortages. Our vision is to revolutionize the blood world and our mission is to establish a fiercely collaborative network of strong, local, and independent blood centers at the cutting edge of society, systems, science, and social and public policy with the shared purpose of achieving a sustainable blood supply for the good of all. To date, we are partnered with 20+ independent blood centers across 15 states. Through our nationwide chapter system, we are building an organized network of dedicated young leaders ready to act against COVID-19 and the blood crisis.

Position Summary: The University Blood Initiative (UBI) is seeking a passionate and educated individual to join us as the Curriculum Developer for the Education and Advocacy Department. Through this role, you will design and create curriculum materials, and train our Chapter Liaisons on how to apply these tools through informative workshops. You may also evaluate existing curriculums and help integrate new technology for them. You will work closely with our Director of Education, Chapter Competency Coordinator, Chapter Liaisons, and researchers to carry out your duties.

Benefits:

- Join on the ground floor of an already fast-growing start-up and help build out an educational department for an organization rapidly gaining national reach and planning to expand internationally
- Immersive community culture which values connection, innovation, integrity, and purpose
- Opportunity for professional growth and internal upward mobility as you engage with Chapter members and understand the driving mission behind our department projects
- Opportunity for internal mobility within National UBI structure as you accrue experience and professional development within National structure
- Work remotely

In this role you will:

- Define course objectives and create year-long curriculum for modules with a two-pronged focus:
  1. Past and current issues prevalent in the blood field, and how chapters can act against them
  2. Soft skill professional development, hard skill building, and role competency
- Collaborate with researchers to create educational material, such as presentations and handouts
- Help design content delivery methods
- Facilitate bimonthly workshops with Chapter Liaisons to teach them the content that they will, in turn, teach chapter Education Chairs
- Aid Director of Education in carrying out training campaigns for chapter positions
  - Evaluate and revise existing training modules; streamline trainings; work with Chapter Liaisons & Chapter Competency Coordinator to ensure proper training implementation

Requirements:

- Organized and accountable individual with excellent interpersonal communication and public speaking skills
- Have experience creating, implementing, and teaching a curriculum
- Ability to commit at least 5hrs a week without compensation until the UBI is sufficiently funded to be able to provide compensation

You'll fit in if you are:

- Committed to excellence, are passionate and empathetic, pay precise attention to detail, and believe in our fight for equity
- Believe in civility in the workplace, have a strong sense of purpose, and are willing to make a difference in your community
